As a recreational diver at Isle Royale National Park I acknowledge there are risks inherent with wreck and deep water diving and the National Park Service may not have the capability to perform property or body recovery.

I understand that disturbing or removing archaeological and cultural resources or human remains is a violation of federal law and this type of activity will result in revocation of diving privileges at Isle Royale.

Sport divers have helped manage the underwater resources at Isle Royale by offering information on observed changes over time. These changes, whether environmental or human caused, provide information that assists with our monitoring efforts. We would encourage you to continue to help us by including comments or observations.
